 - small animal projects and activities
 - shooting sports and model rocketry sports activities and projects

Exploratory activities where the youth under eight does not have contact with animals or firearms are acceptable. These might include reading about, studying and observing animal behavior and events or reading shooting information and observing events

What is the rationale for this policy?

- child is not mature enough to separate failure from personal feelings about self
- inadequate development of judgment ability
- inadequate firearm safety and capabilities
- lack of insurance coverage
- lack of maturity to handle emergency situations
- less developed physical abilities, like eye-hand coordination, muscle strength, balance
- limited understanding of animal behavior
- short attention span, but can complete very simple projects

What if my 4-H club doesn't have a Cloverbud leader?

- not every 4-H club will have a trained Cloverbud leader
- parents/guardians are expected to be involved with Cloverbud members. You have access to Cloverbud kits that you can use with your children.
