What is the Aging Clinic of the Rockies?

The Aging Clinic of the Rockies is a non-profit clinic that offers counseling and assessment services to community members on an affordable sliding fee scale. The clinic is a branch of the Psychological Services Center, associated with the Counseling Psychology Ph.D. training program at Colorado State University.

Our mission is to improve the quality of life for older adults and their loved ones, through promotion of dignity and overall well-being.

For appointments or more information, call the Aging Clinic of the Rockies at (970) 491-6795. More information is available on our website: www.colostate.edu/Depts/Psychology/acor

Psychological Service Center
Gifford Building, 502 West Lake Street

The parking lot is located on the north side of Gifford Building. Our waiting room is located inside Gifford in the Psychological Service Center, room 119.

(970) 491-6795
www.colostate.edu/Depts/Psychology/acor
Neuropsychological assessments
Many older adults experience changes in memory or cognitive functioning as part of the normal aging process. However, some changes in functioning may be indicative of more serious problems. Neuropsychological assessments are a great way to evaluate cognitive strengths and weaknesses, in order to gain diagnostic clarity and assist in developing individualized treatment planning.

Who would benefit from a neuropsychological assessment?
If you or a loved one are experiencing cognitive or memory difficulties, a neuropsychological assessment may be helpful. These assessments help to evaluate if there is a problem, the extent of the problem, potential causes of the problem, and to inform individualized treatment recommendations based on results. Individuals who have experienced a recent medical problem (e.g., stroke, head injury) may also benefit from evaluating the potential cognitive impact of this event. Additionally, individuals who are not currently experiencing memory difficulties can benefit from using an evaluation as a baseline to monitor changes in functioning throughout the aging process.

What is the process like?
The assessment process typically includes an initial interview with the client and other loved ones (as appropriate), a review of previous records, and administration of a battery of neuropsychological tests. After completing the interviews and test battery, the clinician will generate a detailed assessment report that is reviewed with the client during a feedback session. The client can then share the professional report with doctors and other professionals, as appropriate, in order to aid in diagnostic clarity and ongoing treatment planning.

Both Comprehensive and Screening assessments are available, with these varying by cost, duration of testing, and depth of assessment. Feel free to call (970) 491-6795 for more information about which type might be best for you!

What is a neuropsychological assessment?
A neuropsychological assessment evaluates an individual’s functioning across a variety of different domains including cognitive, memory, language, motor, executive, emotional, and adaptive functioning.

Who administers the assessments?
Assessments are administered by a trained technician, under the supervision of licensed psychologists in the state of Colorado.

How much does an assessment cost?
The Aging Clinic of the Rockies is a non-profit clinic that offers counseling and assessment services to community members on an affordable sliding fee scale.